Days of nepotism, family rule are over: Chugh

HIMALAYAN MAIL NEWS
JAMMU, MAR 18

BJP national general secretary Tarun Chugh, who is also the party Incharge of J&K, today warned PDP president Mahbooba Mufti against spreading a divisive agenda among the people for her petty political reasons in view of the coming Lok Sabha elections.

In a statement Chugh took strong exception to the manner Mehbooba has been spreading anti-India narrative in J&K and said it is time that Muftis and Abdullahs along with the

Gandhis realize that the people in J&K would not accept nepotism and family rule in the Union Territory. Chugh said raking up the Pulwama issue at a time when the J&K was moving towards a new era of development and progress only indicated frustration in the Mufti family. It seems that Mehbooba is trying to seek help of her mentors across the border to once again create a situation of disturbance an violence in J&K to garner votes, he said.

Chugh said the way the Modi government has written a new chapter of peace and amity in J&K there are all indications that Abdullahs and Muftis would only lick the dust in the coming elections.

CDC winner Anish's without collection brought a new fashion

NEW DELHI, MARCH 18: Anish Malpani's label, 'Without', made waves when it clinched victory in the 5th edition of the Circular Design Challenge (CDC), a prestigious sustainability award in India. Organized by R|Elan™, the cutting-edge fabric brand under Reliance Industries Limited (RIL), in collaboration with the United Nations in India, the CDC has successfully evolved in alignment with RIL's vision to catalyze India's global leadership in sustainability and the circular economy.

This marks the conclusion of the inaugural global edition of the CDC, signalling a significant milestone in its journey towards fostering sustainable innovation and waste reduction in the fashion industry. As the curtain falls on its first global season, it's evident that the CDC has evolved from a national competition into a beacon of international collaboration and creativity. Over the past four seasons, the CDC has garnered immense popularity within the Indian fashion landscape, emerging as a pivotal platform for nurturing talent dedicated to sustainability and environmental consciousness. Its success in India has served as a springboard for expansion, driven by the shared vision of promoting eco-friendly practices worldwide.

In a testament to its global reach, this season saw the CDC transcend borders, welcoming nominations from across India, EU, UK, and APAC region. Partnering with esteemed organizations like the British Council, Istituto Marangoni & Redress for UK, EU & APAC respectively, the CDC attracted over 70 applications from diverse backgrounds and geographies. Through a meticulous selection process, six pioneering start-ups were chosen, their innovations reflecting a blend of circular design principles, environmental stewardship, and alignment with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. This international collaboration not only underscores the growing importance of sustainability on a global scale but also highlights the CDC's role as a catalyst for positive change in the fashion industry, transcending geographical boundaries to champion a shared vision of a more sustainable future.

This season at Lakme Fashion Week in partnership with FDCI, the winner of the global edition, label 'Without' by Anish Malpani exhibited a collection aptly called "Metamorphique" which showcased a holistic transformation that was aimed at achieving sustainable fashion. The collection of Avant Garde sunglasses was a creative homage to the concept of reimagining the impossible, with recycled plastic waste like packets of chips and turning it into haute fashion accessories.

Mr Hemant D Sharma, President – Polyester, RIL said, "As we conclude the inaugural global edition of the CDC, we celebrate the culmination of a journey marked by innovation, sustainability, and global collaboration.
