

Sherlyn Chopra's Iftar Party With Paparazzi Looked Like This

iftar with the very photographers who follow her every move. In a video shared on Instagram, Sherlyn was seen offering them various delicacies, including sweets, with a warm smile. As the clip played, she asked the shutterbugs to enjoy the iftar. After which, the paparazzi asked her to pose for the camera.

For the day, the model-turned-actress was seen wearing a gorgeous blue sheer saree adorned with intricate golden work all over it. She paired it with a sleeveless matching blouse. Sherlyn chose to forgo heavy pieces of jewellery and opted for just a stack of bangles and dangling earrings. She left her hair open and wore subtle makeup to complete her look for the occasion.

Meanwhile, in a video shared on her Instagram account, Sherlyn gave her fans a peek into how she celebrated one of the days in the holy month of Ramadan. In the clip, the actress was seen offering different types of food to the shutterbugs. From fruits, sweets and fried items, she arranged a feast for them. Sharing the post, she wrote, "Celebrating #iftar with my loved ones! #ramadan #mubarak."

Just days back, Sherlyn once again caught attention when she stepped out in Mumbai to celebrate Holi. The actress was mobbed by her male fans, who even forcibly tried to take selfies with her. In a video of the incident, she was seen stepping out of her building when suddenly a crowd gathered around her to take pictures. Sherlyn was left frustrated with the situation, who then clearly told them to "not touch" her. But as people continued to surround her, she had to call for help from security personnel.

People across the world have been celebrating the holy month of Ramadan with deep devotion, generosity and a spirit of togetherness. After a day of fasting, communities come together for iftar, where they share meals and pray with their loved ones. While many celebrate this occasion with their friends and family, actress-model Sherlyn Chopra took a slightly different approach. She chose to mark the occasion with the paparazzi.

Sherly, a favourite of the shutterbugs, is known for her candid conversations and head-turning moments, which never fail to grab attention. So, it came as no surprise when she decided to celebrate

Oscar-winning Palestinian director Hamdan Ballal arrested

The Oscar-winning director of a documentary on the Israel-Palestinian conflict was arrested late on Monday after being injured during a raid by Israeli settlers on his village in the occupied West Bank, a local official said.

Hamdan Ballal, co-director of the award-winning No Other Land, was attending a gathering for Iftar, the end of the daily Ramadan fast, at Susiya village near Hebron, when a group of settlers attacked the gathering, said Jihad Nawajaa, head of the Susiya local council.

"Dozens of settlers attacked the gathering at Iftar. The young men came out to prevent them, and there were about eight injuries on our side," he said. Israeli police arrested three men, including Ballal, who was injured during the standoff.

Monday's incident was the latest in which Israeli settlers have been accused of raiding Palestinian or Bedouin villages and encampments in the West Bank, sometimes to steal livestock. Palestinians and activists who monitor such attacks say the police and army typically stand by without intervening. Lamia Ballal, the filmmaker's wife, said settlers had gathered around the family house and her husband had gone outside to prevent them from breaking in. "The settlers attacked and started beating him, and then they arrested him. We do not know anything about him," she said.

Anna Lippman, an American-Canadian from a group called the Center for Jewish Nonviolence, said her group had been attacked by settlers after arriving in the village around 15 minutes after the attack began. "Shortly after we were attacked, Hamdan was blindfolded and handcuffed," she said, adding that other activists had seen him being led to a military vehicle and driven off.

Khushbu Sundar Shuts Down Rumours of Nayanthara Disrupting Mookuthi Amman 2 Shoot: 'She Is Professional'

Lately, the grapevine has been buzzing with rumours about trouble on the sets of Mookuthi Amman 2. Whispers suggested that Nayanthara had disrupted the shoot in Chennai, with some even claiming that the makers were thinking of replacing her with Tamannaah Bhatia. However, Khushbu Sundar stepped in and took to X (formerly Twitter) to set the record straight!

Khushbu addressed the chatter head-on, calling out the 'too many unwanted rumours' surrounding Mookuthi Amman 2. She assured everyone that the shoot was progressing smoothly as planned, putting an end to the speculation.

She wrote, "To all the wellwishers of #SundarC Sir. Too many unwanted rumors are floating about ##Mookuthi-Amman2. Please loosen up. Shoot is underway smoothly and going as planned."

Khushbu made it clear that there was no drama on set, praising both Sundar C and Nayanthara as true professionals. She also reassured fans that the team was thrilled to have Nayanthara back as Mookuthi Amman. "Everyone knows Sundar is a no nonsense person. #Nayanthara is a very professional actor who has proved her worth. More than happy to have her play a role she has reprised in the past," wrote Khushbu.

Khushbu further stated that everything 'happens for good' without explaining why, adding, "These rumors are like 'drishti edutha maadhiri'. All that happens, happens for good. Your goodwill, blessings and love is all that we count upon. Thank you for always being with us. So relax, and look forward to yet another blockbuster by the King of Entertainment."

Earlier this week, Hindu Tamil reported that Nayanthara had a heated argument with an assistant director over a costume, which allegedly led to Sundar C halting the shoot in Chennai. The report even suggested that the makers were considering replacing her with Tamannaah and that producer Ishari K Ganesh had to step in to resolve the issue.

Kusha Kapila Hides Her Face As She Gets 'Harassed' By Paps, Netizens Call It 'Staged Video'

The ongoing issue of paparazzi intrusion into the lives of celebrities is often discussed and debated. Recently, it was brought to everyone's attention again after a video went viral featuring Kusha Kapila hiding her face from the paps as they tried to capture her visuals. Even though Kusha requested that they not take her video, the paps continued to bother her.

In the undated video, Kusha Kapila could be seen using her phone to hide her face as she made her way to her car. She requested, "Please, please, please." However, her request was in vain as the paps replied that they had been waiting for her for a long time. She said, "Please, kya kar rahe hain aap?" The shutterbugs followed her to the other side of her car till she drove off.

Some Reddit users argued that the behavior of the paparazzi was intrusive and disrespectful, questioning whether such constant attention is justified. Others speculated that celebrities, at times, may encourage such media coverage for publicity and call the paps themselves. One person wrote, "This is so disrespectful." Another comment read, "Not fair." While many others felt the same way, some believed the video was staged. One comment read, "She called the paps herself." Another person wrote, "It seems like a fake staged video." Another person wrote, "I wonder why she is being followed? She isn't that huge a star."

Kusha Kapila is a popular Indian content creator, actress, and social media influencer known for her humorous sketches and relatable characters. She gained widespread recognition through her work on Instagram and YouTube, where her comedic videos and witty dialogues resonated with millions. She is now also an actress and has been a part of projects like Thank You For Coming, Adulging and Life Hill Gayi, among others.

Nushrat Bharucha Dazzles in Archana Kochhar's "Midnight Ebony" Collection at Grand Finale of the Global Media Fashion League in Dubai.